McKINNEY, TEXAS

McKinney is a city in Collin County, Texas, United States, and the second in population to Plano. It is part of the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area, and is located about 31 mi north of Dallas. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the city's 2010 population was 131,117 making it the nineteenth most populous city in the state of Texas.

William Davis donated the land that makes up McKinney in 1849, ten short years later McKinney was incorporated. Named after Collin McKinney, signer of the Texas Declaration of Independence and congressman for the Republic of Texas, McKinney is one of the fastest growing cities in the nation. The town prides itself on being ranked number one on the Best Places to Live in the United States list in the 2014 issue of CNN's Money magazine along with McKinney North High School's area ranked football team.
